

Kwantlen Applied Archaeology Field School Boston Bar 2009

Fieldwork took place at three archaeological sites: Ancient villages at Kopchitchin and Tuckkwiowhum, and a high elevation cedar harvest site in the South Ainslie.

Vertical site map of the Kopchitchin excavations. Several pithouses are present at this site, and our project excavated two of them.

Artifacts recovered from the excavations included a US Army pre-civil war uniform button, a 1,000 year old arrowhead, and a mid-1800s harmonica. We determined that the village at Kopchitchin was inhabited from about 6,000 years ago until just after the construction of the CPR. After this, people moved to the current location on the west side of the tracks.
