DESCRIPTION

The Bachelor of Arts in Community Criminal Justice program provides students with the following benefits:

1. A broad understanding of crime and social justice issues within community, national, and international contexts.
2. Courses unique in Canada that unite practical and professional skills with community building and social justice.
3. An understanding of social and legal responses to crime and justice and the inter-relationship of these responses on societal attitudes.
4. A solid understanding of, and familiarity with, the research techniques that allow us to accurately document crime, victimization, attitudes, and social and legal change.
5. Ability to think critically and respond innovatively to emerging trends in community-based justice and related agencies.
6. Opportunities to work in direct partnership with local agencies and faculty on projects or engage in research, working closely with academic supervisors.
7. An understanding of, and ability to use, various means to promote social justice, including conflict resolution, restorative justice, community advocacy in a human rights framework, and an ability to deal with the many regulatory regimes that affect people in the justice system.

The Bachelor of Arts in Community Criminal Justice program ensures that graduates have covered a range of theoretical, scientific, legal, and practical courses. Specific upper-division courses build knowledge and skills in:

- understanding historical and contemporary perspectives of social justice and injustice
- developing individual skills and leadership abilities to work effectively with community-based agencies and organizations that promote social justice goals
- understanding crime in communities and its prevention
- empirical data collection, analysis, and presentation

- conflict resolution and mediation
- professional communication skills
- project planning, management, and evaluation
- advocacy, human rights, and decision-making in regulatory agencies
- professional ethics

Students who are interested in applying to graduate school or prefer more extensive research experience are encouraged to undertake a structure program leading to a Bachelor of Arts in Community Criminal Justice, Honours degree. Students may obtain a Bachelor of Arts in Community Criminal Justice (Honours) degree by completing a further 12 credits of coursework centered around developing, researching, and writing an Honours Thesis.

Note: See the Bachelor of Arts Honours, Major, and Minor in Criminology for information on an alternate program.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

The limited success of traditional responses to crime, violence, poverty, homelessness, mental illness, and other social issues has increased calls for different approaches and strategies. New awareness of the burdens and social costs associated with these issues requires communities to rethink and focus their efforts. Kwantlen's Bachelor of Arts in Community Criminal Justice features a unique focus on community-based solutions to crime and social justice issues. The conceptual, critical, and applied skills that students acquire in this program will be attractive to employers in a wide range of settings.

Graduates will be prepared for careers in community-based and traditional organizations concerned with the justice field.
