

Teaching & Learning Commons

DIGITAL PEDAGOGY WEBINAR SERIES

Information & registration: kpu.ca/dpws

Inclusive Digital Pedagogy in Exclusionary Times

Many of us are familiar with the tenets and practices associated with Inclusive Pedagogy. But much of the literature and case-study work in this area centers traditional, face-to-face courses. This year, however, has underscored our urgent need for models of critically inclusive pedagogy for hybrid and fully-online spaces. What does it mean to teach inclusively in an online course? How can we ensure that digital learning spaces are spaces of radical welcome, as opposed to marginalization and exclusion? In this session, we'll identify some principles with which we might answer those questions, and think about how they might be embodied in our own praxis.

MAY 18, 2021
12:00 - 1:00 PM
ONLINE

DR. KEVIN GANNON

Kevin Gannon is Director of the Center for Excellence in Teaching and Learning and Professor of History at Grand View University, in Iowa, US. He is the author of Radical Hope: A Teaching Manifesto (West Virginia University Press, 2020).

@TheTattooedProf
thetattooedprof.com