- We hope you had a rejuvenating and enjoyable summer. As we begin this new academic year, here are a few highlights and links to other information:
  - This newsletter is now fully accessible.

- In response to feedback from our assessment, learning, and teaching faculty and staff survey, we are making improvements in our core technologies, retention, and strategy. More information is available on this page.

Faculty Spotlight: Arley Cruthers

We are delighted to feature this week’s Faculty Spotlight on Arley Cruthers, faculty in the Social Work program in the Faculty of Arts.

Arley’s journey to teaching is a very interesting one, having moved from medieval studies to social work. With an eye towards social justice, Arley has collaborated in a variety of roles in the Faculty of Arts.

If you would like to be featured in an upcoming newsletter or have a colleague you wish to see featured in this newsletter, please reach out to tlcommons@kpu.ca.

Most Powerful Tools - Boyd, Tony

A camera can be an incredibly powerful tool. From assessment and feedback to documentation and analysis, using a camera in your class encourages experimentation, collaboration and creativity. Whether you own a cellphone or a DSLR camera, including photography and videography within your curricula and classroom activities can positively impact learning outcomes and learners' experiences. Learn how to use your own camera as well as a collection of compatible apps like OneDrive and OneNote and how to annotate on the iPad directly and in Human Resources at tlcommons@kpu.ca.
