We educate the best to make a difference in the world

About us

Pontificia Universidad Javeriana is a Jesuit institution of higher education whose beginnings go back to 1623. As one of Colombia's most prestigious universities, it offers a variety of strong undergraduate and graduate programs in two different locations: the cities of Bogotá and Cali. Given the growing economic and educational demands, the Cali campus was established five decades ago in the Southwestern region of the country. Today Javeriana Cali stands as a prestigious center of research, with national higher accreditation by the Ministry of Education in Colombia.

Cali's Surroundings

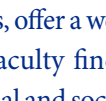

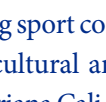

As one of Colombia's distinct business and agricultural centers, Cali is the third largest city in the country with a population nearing 2 '500.000. It enjoys a strategic location 50 miles away from the Pacific Ocean, nestled in the fertile Cauca Valley next to the picturesque Andean mountains. Ethnically, Cali displays a rich and diverse heritage-African, Amerindian and European.

This is a region where immigration has left its strong footprint. Cali is known as the salsa music capital of the world, this area is recognized internationally for its colorful festivals and celebrations. Its year-round warm climate, creative cuisine, breath-taking landscapes, and cheerful inhabitants make it a "must see" destination to travelers.

Its growing reputation as an educational center with a number of well-positioned schools and universities attract a number of visitors every year—local and international.
