Film Study: Elvis

Monday, March 11 and
Tuesday, March 12 (2 sessions)
10:00 – 11:50 am
Surrey Campus, Fir Building,
Monday • Room 126
Tuesday • Room 232

Join Greg Chan, KPU English Department faculty member, for two sessions focused on Baz Luhrmann's Elvis film. Through scene analysis, Greg will first break down the film's narrative structure, taking us inside select scenes in a process complemented by a close reading of the screenplay. Then, the focus will shift to sound design and Luhrmann's selected songs from Elvis's catalogue to develop characters, advance the plot and reinforce themes. Watching the film before the course is recommended.

Room 3010

Dr. Les Ennis will take us on a journey of his recent humanitarian dental outreach clinics to rural Tanzania and on safari to experience the incredibly diverse wildlife across this nation. Along with the serious side, his images will give insight into the Tanzanian people and country with humour and wit. Dr. Ennis will dive into the causes of dental disease in impoverished populations, the implications both socially and to health, and what interventions can achieve to help mitigate this epidemic. The people of Tanzania are warm, friendly, welcoming, and extremely family focused. And then, there are the animals!
